MISSION:

Through a combination of education and research, the Whitney R. Harris World Law Institute contributes to the betterment of global society. It does this by increasing global knowledge and understanding, promoting the rule of law, and addressing problems that require international cooperation and international solutions.

The Institute enhances the intellectual vibrancy of the Law School and the University, provides advice and assistance to other University departments and transnational components of the Law School, and fosters collaboration among colleagues at home and abroad who are engaged in international or comparative work.

LEADERSHIP

“Do not go where the path may lead, go instead where there is no path and leave a trail.”

— Ralph Waldo Emerson

Leadership

Nancy Staudt
Dean and Howard & Caroline Cayne
Professor of Law

“A great law school is a global law school. Washington University School of Law has emerged as a leader in global education, producing compassionate, disciplined and highly-skilled lawyers that can address 21st Century problems. The Harris Institute is an integral component of the law school’s success.”

Leila Nadya Sadat
James Carr Professor of International
Criminal Law and Director,
Whitney R. Harris World Law Institute

“Over the past three years, the Institute has hosted more than 100 speakers, events and conferences in the United States and abroad, launched a series of exciting new programs and expanded its outreach and publications. Our work is animated and inspired by our commitment to a more just and peaceful world.”

Richard Goldstone, Whitney and Anna Harris

“No State can prosper in isolation without the cooperation of other States and respect for international law.

I continue to appreciate and admire the role of the Whitney R. Harris World Law Institute in advancing international law and highlighting the respect it deserves from all governments. Its imaginative project on an International Convention for Crimes against Humanity demonstrates the importance of the role being played by this excellent Institute.”

In 2008, the Institute launched a global initiative for a new treaty on crimes against humanity. Following the Institute's lead, in 2013 the UN International Law Commission took up the topic and in 2014 moved it to its active agenda following an Experts' Meeting convened by the Institute at the Geneva Academy. The ILC has provisionally adopted ten articles of a possible draft convention on crimes against humanity based upon the work of Special Rapporteur Sean Murphy.

“Peace cannot be kept by force; it can only be achieved by understanding.”

— Albert Einstein

Members of the International Law Commission and international experts at the Villa Moynier, Geneva, May 2014

On August 12, 2014, the ABA House of Delegates unanimously adopted Resolution 300 calling for new U.S. federal legislation on crimes against humanity as well as for the United States to take the lead in negotiating a new global treaty on crimes against humanity. The Harris Institute continues to work with the International Law Commission, States and NGOs on this important Initiative.

In November 2015, Members of the Crimes Against Humanity Initiative’s Steering Committee participated in an Experts’ Meeting on the Drafting of a Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of Crimes Against Humanity, convened by the International Nuremberg Principles Academy.

The Harris Institute produces a wide range of educational materials and academic publications addressing current issues in international and comparative law. Conference proceedings are either published in the Washington University Global Studies Law Review or in edited volumes with prestigious academic presses. The Institute also publishes debates, occasional papers and essays and has its own blog, Lex lata lex ferenda, which it launched in 2014. The Institute released its first documentary film, Never Again: Forging a Convention for Crimes Against Humanity, in fall 2016.

“Receiving this opportunity was the capstone in my training as an international lawyer.... The chance to hone my skills at the International Court of Justice [was] the perfect complement to my previous studies and will hopefully facilitate a smooth transition from student to practitioner.”

Washington University Law is one of a select number of universities in the world permitted to nominate graduates for Traineeship positions with the International Court of Justice in The Hague. In 2015-2016, Douglas Pivnichny was selected by the Court to work with H.E. Judge James R. Crawford, AC, SC, FBA.

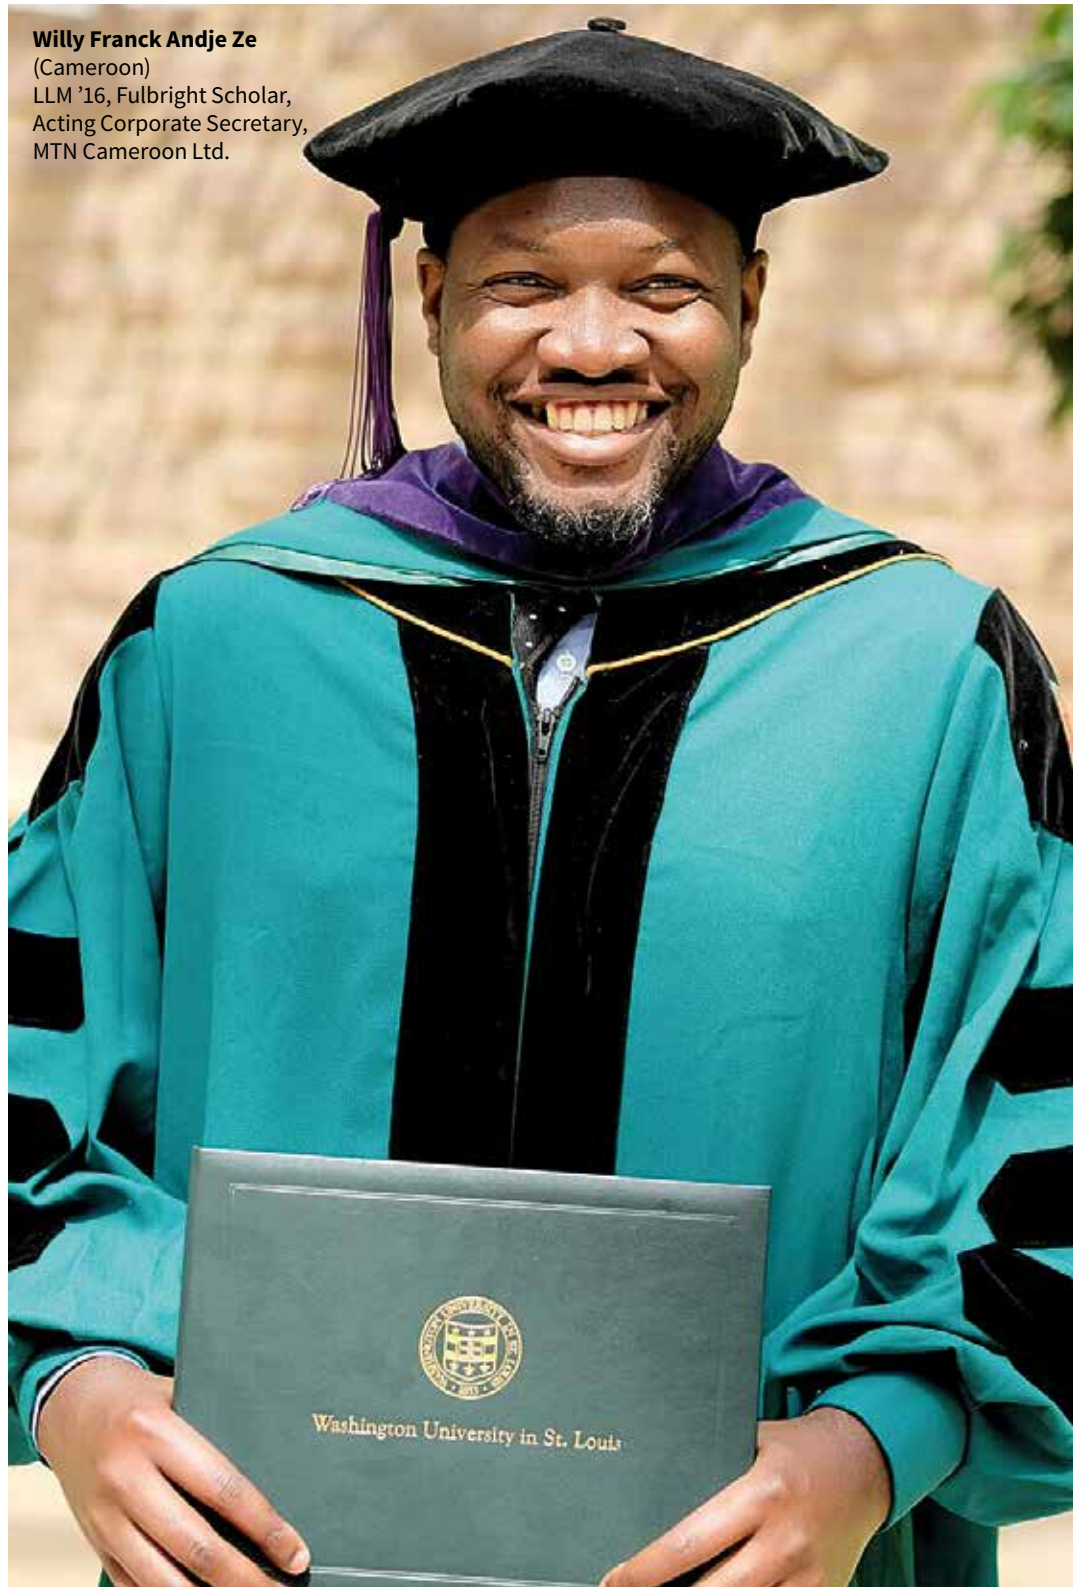

“Studying abroad and clerking for the Supreme Court of Israel was the highlight of my time at WashULaw. I am happy to call the other foreign law clerks and the court staff my friends and I know that this is not the last time I will be in Israel.”

FACULTY
& STAFF

“Education is not the filling of a pail, but the lighting of a fire.”

—William Butler Yeats

At the heart of any great law school is a world-class faculty. The Harris Institute benefits from the pioneering scholarship and inspiring teaching of Washington University School of Law faculty, as well as the passion and dedication of its staff.

WashULaw students have been taught by distinguished faculty who have earned a host of prestigious awards, fellowships and recognition for their scholarship including a Nobel prize in economics, the Princeton Law and Public Affairs Fellowship, the Guggenheim Fellowship, and Fulbright awards and distinguished chairs including the Tocqueville Chair (Paris). Many have also served or are serving in the U.S. government or in international institutions as counsellors and advisors.
