International Programs

MISSION:

Through a combination of education and research, the Whitney R. Harris World Law Institute contributes to the betterment of global society. It does this by increasing global knowledge and understanding, promoting the rule of law, and addressing problems that require international cooperation and international solutions.

The Institute enhances the intellectual vibrancy of the Law School and the University, provides advice and assistance to other University departments and transnational components of the Law School, and fosters collaboration among colleagues at home and abroad who are engaged in international or comparative work.

20TH
ANNIVERSARY

“What could we accomplish if we knew we could not fail?”

—Eleanor Roosevelt

The Whitney R. Harris World Law Institute at Washington University School of Law was established in 2000 as the Institute for Global Legal Studies. It was renamed in 2002 in honor and recognition of Whitney R. Harris’s lifelong achievements in the field of international justice. Over its 20 year history, the Harris Institute has sponsored more than 125 lectures and held or co-sponsored more than 70 conferences, workshops, and experts’ meetings. Its work has led to the publication of 7 books, 18 law review volumes, 1 documentary film, and the world’s first crimes against humanity treaty.

Leadership

Nancy Staudt
Dean and Howard & Caroline Cayne
Professor of Law

“I am proud to be the Dean of the Law School where the prestigious Harris Institute is housed. The ambitious research agenda and programmatic activities of the Institute, as well as the many international students it attracts to our campus, increases the intellectual vibrancy of the University and secures our place as one of the world’s great global law schools.”

Leila Nadya Sadat
James Carr Professor of International Law and Director, Whitney R. Harris
World Law Institute

“In just twenty years, the Whitney R. Harris World Law Institute has become one of the world’s premier centers for international legal scholarship and research. Through collaboration, innovation, and by employing an interdisciplinary approach, the Institute has been able to network with scholars and students all over the globe to make progress on some of the world’s most vexing problems.”

Steven “Cash” Nickerson with Chancellor Emeritus Mark Wrighton at the Crimes Against Humanity Initiative Capstone Conference in Washington, D.C. (2010)

“There are just a few human rights-based institutes that truly make a difference in their practical approach to seeking justice for the oppressed. The Harris Institute at Washington University in St. Louis and its School of Law is one of those leading centers.

I have been associated with this great law school and the Harris Institute for almost 20 years. I had the honor and privilege to know and work with Whitney Harris and his family in facing down the beast of impunity. His legacy continues through the institute that carries his name and as a former international chief prosecutor I look to the Harris Institute to lead the world in ensuring that the rule of law is more powerful than the rule of the gun.”

IN MEMORIAM: M. CHERIF BASSIOUNI

On September 25, 2017, the world lost a great soul, Professor M. Cherif Bassiouni. Cherif was an active supporter and friend of Washington University School of Law, and especially the Whitney R. Harris World Law Institute. He delivered an Assembly Series Lecture in 1999, joined the Institute's International Council in 2001, received the World Peace Through Law Award in 2010, and spearheaded the drafting of a new global treaty on crimes against humanity as part of the Institute's Crimes Against Humanity Initiative. He also gave many lectures and much good advice over the years, helping to build the fledgling Institute into the globally-recognized entity it is today. The Institute, and the School of Law, are deeply indebted to him.

In 2008, the Institute launched a global initiative for a new treaty on crimes against humanity, the first true effort to remedy an historic gap in the law. Following the Institute's lead, the U.N. International Law Commission (ILC) began work on drafting articles for a future convention in 2014.

In 2019, the ILC completed a second reading of "Draft Articles on the Prevention and Punishment of Crimes against Humanity" and recommended "the elaboration of a convention by the General Assembly or by an international conference of plenipotentiaries on the basis of the draft articles." The Draft Articles will be considered by the U.N. Sixth (Legal) Committee in 2020.

The Harris Institute has sponsored workshops and meetings around the world in support of the ILC's work, including at the Assembly of States Parties of the International Criminal Court in The Hague and New York City, and in France, Germany, Singapore, Peru, South Africa, Switzerland, and the United Kingdom.

In 2017, the Institute launched the Gun Violence and Human Rights Initiative to examine the U.S. government’s response to gun violence in light of U.S. obligations under international human rights law. WashU Law students and the Harris Institute Fellow are conducting in-depth research articulating mechanisms to rectify the crisis and suggesting international fora that can examine the issue.

OUTREACH & PUBLICATIONS

“There may be times when we are powerless to prevent injustice, but there must never be a time when we fail to protest.”

—Elie Wiesel

The Harris Institute produces a wide range of educational materials and academic publications addressing current issues in international and comparative law. Conference proceedings are published in the Washington University Global Studies Law Review, the Washington University Journal of Law and Policy, the Washington University Law Review, or in edited volumes with academic presses. The Institute also publishes debates, occasional papers, and essays and has its own blog, Lex lata lex ferenda. The Institute released its first documentary film, Never Again: Forging a Convention for Crimes Against Humanity, in fall 2016, and the French version was released in 2019.

Seeking Accountability for the Unlawful Use of Force
(Leila Nadya Sadat ed., Cambridge University Press, 2018)

The Founders: Four Pioneering Individuals Who Launched the First Modern-Era International Criminal Tribunals
(co-edited by Leila Sadat, Cambridge University Press, 2018)

Never Again is a 45-minute documentary film exposing the commission of crimes against humanity around the world, and the need for a new global treaty to prevent and punish them. Told through the voices of the victims, interspersed with commentary from world experts, the film is a testament to the power of the human spirit and to the potential of law to bring healing and change. The film was featured in four international film festivals, and has been shown at universities, high schools, and civil society events around the world.

United Nations Submissions

The Harris Institute contributes to the progressive development of international law through engagement with the work of the United Nations. During the past three years, the Institute has submitted formal reports to various U.N. bodies as well as informal reports and comments.

Although I am back in the States, I know that my journey that began in St. Louis has not yet finished. I am grateful to WashU and the Harris Institute for all the incredible opportunities.”

“As a result of the onset of the global pandemic this spring, my negotiating and contract management skills were challenged due to the immediate cancellation of hundreds of event contracts. I saw a need to enhance and to continue to develop my skills in these areas and began taking courses at the law school, where I was immediately able to put my new knowledge to use.”

“To become an international lawyer, each of us should first lay down the foundations. The Harris Institute was the place where I laid down mine. Thanks to the exceptional training I received, I discovered the subject matter I feel passionate about and devoted to.”

“Real change, enduring change, happens one step at a time.”

—Ruth Bader Ginsburg

Each year, Washington University law students enhance their studies through specialized programs and projects at home and abroad. Through clinics, internships, and fellowships, these student-lawyers gain invaluable firsthand experience while working for positive change around the world. Through competitions, international academic programs, and research opportunities, students receive training and education in international and human rights law – all designed to prepare them for a changing and increasingly international legal market. WashULaw students have the opportunity to pursue a wide range of international academic and experiential learning programs, including:

- » Transnational Law Program
- » Specialized LLM and JSD Programs
- » Certificate in International Law for JD candidates
- » Exchange and Study Abroad Programs

The Philip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Competition

Washington University has one of the top Jessup International Law Moot Court programs in the United States and the world. Its teams have won 10 regional championships and advanced to the international rounds of the competition 12 times. They have placed in the top 16 teams in the world 3 times and in the top 8 twice. The School has won every writing award given by the Jessup competition and WashULaw oralists have often placed in the top spots, including placing two oralists in the top five of the 2019 International Rounds.

2020 WashULaw Jessup Team: Peiran Zhang, Jessica Yu, Christian Rose, Kristina Houchins, and Megan Ferguson

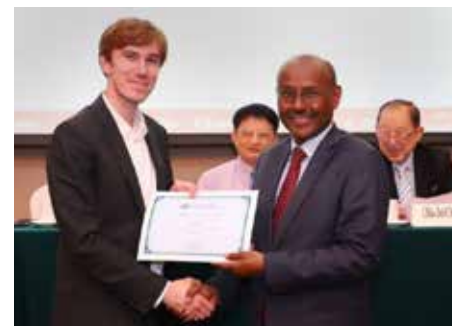

2019 WashULaw Jessup Team: Kristina Houchins, Wenlan Geng, Gilbert Sison, Megan Ferguson, Lola Awobokun, and Emily Brewster

“In the future, world leaders will look at each other differently because they first met here as friends.”

Dagen-Legomsky Fellowship Program

Each year, 3-5 students are selected for prestigious Dagen-Legomsky Fellowships, serving as global public interest law fellows, studying at The Hague or Xiamen Academies of International Law, or working as research assistants to members of the U.N. International Law Commission. More than 100 students have participated over the course of the program and have studied or worked in more than 15 countries. Over the past 20 years, another 200 students have participated in Global Public Interest Law Fellowships, interning with legal aid offices, NGOs, and tribunals in Africa, South America, Europe, and Asia.

IN MEMORIAM FOR FRANCES H. FOSTER

Frances H. Foster, J.D. 1981, passed away on October 4, 2019 after a lengthy illness. Professor Foster was a beloved member of Washington University in St. Louis School of Law, where she began her law teaching career in 1988 and remained until her retirement in 2018. In 2005, Washington University appointed her as the Edward T. Foote II Professor of Law. She specialized in trusts and estates and in the legal systems of socialist countries. She is best known for her critique of the family paradigm in American inheritance and her descriptions of individualized justice under Chinese inheritance law. She was a dear friend and colleague and is sorely missed.

“As the former recipient of the World Peace Through Law Award I am really thrilled that Patricia Viseur Sellers is my successor. Her work as a legal advisor for gender at the Offices of the Prosecutor at the ICTY, ICTR and ICC has been of crucial importance for the many victims of gender crimes.

Happy 20th anniversary, dear Harris Institute! I am sure that Whitney, looking down from his cloud in heaven, will be extremely proud of the Institute's achievements. He will be very happy to see the progress of the Crimes Against Humanity Initiative, thanks to the relentless work of Professor Leila Sadat and the invaluable moral support of Anna Harris.”
